

Michael Berger

Assistant Professor of English and Communications

Michael Berger is Assistant Professor of English and Communications with the General Education Department at TCCNHS. Michael earned a B.A. in Liberal Arts from St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, an M.A. in English at Indiana University Bloomington, and a Ph.D. in English at the University of Cincinnati, specializing in American literature. Michael published a book on American writer Henry David Thoreau's blending of science and literature.

Michael has taught literature and composition at several colleges and universities, and taught Advanced Placement English and philosophy at Walnut Hills High School, where he established a writing center and earned recognition from the Cincinnati Public Schools as a Leader in Literacy.

Michael joined the faculty of The Christ College of Nursing and Health Sciences in 2006. He teaches English and communications courses and coordinates the college's writing across the curriculum initiative. Michael helped establish the Writing Center at TCCNHS and enjoys talking with students about their writing and their ideas.

Michael lives in Montgomery, Ohio, with his wife Andrea, who is an IT manager at P&G; his two children, Alexander and Helen; and two cats, Hera and Isis. He enjoys his family and walking in the nearby park and occasionally plays a little basketball and strums a guitar.
